Remainder of the Retreat of King STANISLAUS from Dantzick, inſerted in our laſt.

I ſaid to them, that it would be proper for us to ſtop; but my two Peaſants, who were always for domineering, refus'd, declaring that 'twould be to no purpoſe, and even dangerous for us to make an Enquiry, ſince we could not paſs the River any where but at Marienburgh: Nevertheleſs I at laſt was ſo far Maſter, that one of my Peaſants went into the Houſe to make ſome Enquiry, but, very luckily for me, the Inhabitants could not ſpeak any Tongue but the Poliſh, as he came and inform'd me, adding, that he could not make them underſtand him.

Upon this I alighted from the Calaſh, with deſign to ſpeak to them; but this my Peaſants oppos'd, they being afraid that my Speech would betray me. After diſputing ſome time, they came from the Calaſh, and told me plainly that they would leave me, being determined to ſave their Necks: I willingly conſented, being no longer able to bear with their Inſolence and Stupidity. I then went into the Houſe, and told the Landlady very courteouſly, that I wanted to croſs the Nogat, in order to go and buy Cattle; but ſhe told me, that there was not one Boat upon the River, and that ſhe herſelf had a few Cattle to diſpoſe of: I anſwer'd, that I would alſo purchaſe ſome of her at my Return, but that I ſhould think my ſelf obliged to her, if ſhe could find means for to croſs the River: The good Woman reply'd, I ſee you are an honeſt Man, ſo will let my Son conduct you; a quarter of a League from hence is a Friend of ours, a Fiſherman, who lives on the other ſide the Water, and keeps a little Vedelin in his Houſe, upon my Sons making a Signal to him, he will come to this ſide and take you into his Boat: I thank'd the good Woman, and ſtept into the Calaſh with her Son; My raſcally Peaſants, who were ſtill there, obſerving me not to be ſo much dejected as before, and that I had a Guide, ſuſpected I now had got what I wanted, ſo came up to me with a Deſign of getting into the Calaſh, and this not being a proper Seaſon for Reproaches, I did not ſay a Word to them: I therefore ſet out and after riding a quarter of a League, came to the Bank of the Nogat, where indeed the Landlady's Son, at his firſt Signal, made his Friend the Fiſherman come out of his Hut and drag his little Vedelin after him into the River: The moment he was come over to us, I ſtept into the Vedelin with one of my Peaſants, and left the other with our Equipage, it not being poſſible for us to convey it croſs the River, and had order'd him to wait there till his Comrade, whom I intended to ſend back the ſame Day was return'd to him

In this manner, Praiſe be to Almighty GOD, I croſs'd the Nogat, and very luckily for me, found in the little Village call'd Bielogora, ſcituated on the River's ſide, a ſmall Waggon and two Horſes, which brought me happily to Marienburgh on Saturday the 2d of July, after having ſent away my Peaſant with a ſhort Letter to the A———r. Finding my ſelf alone in the publick Houſe, I took a little reſt, after ſuſtaining incredible Bodily Fatigues, without being able to give any Eaſe to my Mind, which was in great Agitation upon Account of my uncertainty what Courſe to take.

I can juſtly affirm, that the Satisfaction which my Eſcape gives me, is not capable ſoothing my Affliction, as I no longer enjoy the ſincere Friends whom I loſt, and that after the moſt cruel manner in Dantzick. I don't pity them as Priſoners of War, for this is the Fate of Men of Honour; but what Compaſſion do they not Merit, ſhould they be reduc'd to the Condition of Slaves at the Expence of their Conſcience and Liberty?

The next Day after my arrival at Marienwerder, I was ſo fortunate as to meet again with my faithful Companion General Steinflicht which is a great Conſolation to me.

Peterſburg, March 1. The Captains of the Men of War and Frigates which are to form next Summer's Squadron in the Baltick, are already nominated: This Fleet will conſiſt only of 16 Ships of the Line, 4 Frigates, and a Bomb Veſſel: but we do not yet know what Admiral will have the Chief Command. The Czarina has not yet taken any Reſolution to accede to the Treaty concluded between Sweden and Denmark. Upon Report made by Count Munich, that the Recruits ſent to Poland are ſufficient to compleat the Troops in that Kingdom, Orders are given to put a Stop to the new Levies. We have received certain Advice from Derbent, that Kouli Kan, the Perſian General, had diſlodged the Turks from their fortified Camp, 20 Leagues from Bagdat, in which Action the latter loſt ſo many Men that they could ſcarce continue to keep in Arms.

Genoua, March 7, N. S. Laſt Night the Count de Beuil, who commands in the Marſhal Broglio's Abſence, receiv'd a Courier from him, with News of the Surrender of the Citadel of Meſſina by Capitulation, which will enable the Spaniards to join us with a larger Body by 16 Battalions the Begining of the Campaign, the Emperor having now only Syracuſa left in all Sicily, and that is blocked up.

A Party of the Enemy advanced laſt Night within Carabine Shot of this Place, and ſurpriz'd and took 20 Huſſars aſleep that had been out a patroling.

Turin, March 9. The Marſhal de Nouilles arriv'd this Afternoon at 4 o'Clock.

St. Amaſin, March 10. Laſt Night at 12 o'Clock M. de Givry who commands on the Rhine, ſent Orders for all the Militia to be ready to march, with all thoſe of Alſatia, to guard the Rhine. There is a Camp actually forming at Chalampe, where 15,000 Men are daily expected; all our Carriages are ſtop'd to convey Timber to it.

The Enemy have demanded Contributions out of New Briſac, Colmar, Keiſerberg, Schlettat and other Places, but I believe they muſt go themſelves; for there's no Diſpoſition made to ſend them. The Prince of Wirtemburg appears, with ſome Peaſants, from the Black Mountain's t'other Side of the Rhine; he threatens to paſs this River, and ravage Alſatia if they will not pay the Contributions.

M. de

M. de Givry has receiv'd Contributions from the Diſtrict of Briſgaw by two Provoſts. The Governor of Briſac, a few Days ſince, ſent for theſe Provoſts and another Man, who was deputed to pay the ſaid Contributions, whom he caus'd to be hang'd immediately, and he has impriſon'd the other two, and is alſo for hanging them. Upon M. de Givry's receiving this News, he ſent Word to the Governor, that if he does hang them, he will throw in a whole Shower of Bombs into Briſac with the large Mortar.

Vienna, March 4 Our Chief Miniſters and Generals have had a Conference, the Reſult whereof was to ſend our oldeſt Troops into Italy. The Emperor has ordered thoſe Regiments that are in Hungaria and in Servia to march to Lombardy, and their Places will be ſupplied by the Muſcovites that are coming to aſſiſt the Emperor.

The 6000 lately rais'd by the King of Denmark for the Emperor are aſſembling towards Hambourg, in order to march towards the Rhine the Middle of this Month

We hear from Warſaw, that the Crown Army have abandoned Count Potoki, and joined Count Tarlo; but the Saxons and Ruſſians are in Purſuit of the latter, to force him either to fight or diſperſe his Troops. The Duke of Mecklenburgh is arriv'd at Dantzick.

From the Rhine, March 5. The new Counterſcarp at Heidelburgh is finiſhed, and another Work there will ſoon be perfected. 2000 Men are conſtantly employ'd on the Fortifications of Mayence.

Thirty thouſand French are to encamp the Middle of this Month at Hombourg, in the Dutchy of Deux-ponts. Next Week the Imperial Head Quarters will be eſtabliſhed at Heidelburg: Their Generals begin to arrive, ſo 'tis thought they will begin the Campaign early. The Duke of Wirtemberg is arriv'd at Rheinfeld, and goes thence to Bale, to confer with the Marquis de Bade-Dourlack and the Emperor's Ambaſſador. The Imperial Troops are aſſembling from all Quarters in the Black Foreſt.

LONDON, March 13

Some Letters from Milan mention, that the People of that Duchy are not ſo well pleaſed with the Change of their Government as they expected, on Account of the heavy Impoſitions to ſupply the extraordinary Expences of the War, the King of Sardinia having lately demanded of them two Millions, to be paid in two Months Time; and that they have taken away Part of the Furniture from the Ducal Palace, to ſend it to Cremona, his Majeſty being now preparing to return thither.

They talk at Vienna that they have Advice of the Ottoman Affairs having taken ſuch a favourable Turn, that all the Schemes of Count Bonneval againſt Chriſtendom have proved abortive, and that famous Renegado put under Arreſt; but however this may be, 'tis aſſured from good Hands, that the Motions which the Turks made on the Frontiers of Boſnia, were only to exchange their Garriſons, and draw together ſome Troops to ſend towards Perſia.

The King of Pruſſia lately told Count Seckendorf at Dinner, that beſides the additional Succour of Troops, he had reſolved to lend the Emperor his fine Pontoons during this War, with which they may in a ſhort Time, with ſmall Trouble, lay Bridges over the largeſt Rivers, for the Paſſage of the greateſt Armies.

The Hanoverian, Daniſh, and other Auxiliary Troops are in march to canton between Mentz and Heidelburg; and the Duke of Wirtemburg is going to take upon him the Command of the 50,000 Men to be poſted in thoſe Parts

'Tis confirm'd from the Hague, that the States General have continued their Neutrality with France for another Year

The following is a Tranſlation of a French Copy of Verſes, being the Subſtance of the King of Pruſſia's Advice to his Son, during his late Illneſs. 'The Rank we bear is generally 'envied: But we muſt quit it, my Son when we come to 'die That vain Grandeur ought not to puff us up; it is 'a Torrent we ſee roll away in a Moment. We, who 'are here Lords and Maſters, when Death has united us 'with our Anceſtors, We ſhall appear, my Son, with all 'our faults, and our meaneſt Subjects will then be our 'Equals. Of our famous Exploits we muſt give an Account: 'Our Glory perhaps will be our Shame. To avoid, my 'Son, ſo cruel a Return, Reign like a Sovereign that 'muſt die. Honour Virtue, execute Juſtice, puniſh Vil'lainy, and Vice ſuppreſs. Love your ſubjects, that 'they may love you, and let it be your Glory to make 'your People happy.

New Port Rhode-Iſland, April 21.

By a private Letter to a Gentleman here on the 15th of laſt Month, we are inform'd, that it is very ſickly at Barbados, many People dying, moſtly Strangers, of a Fever, which carries them off in in 24 Hours after they are taken. Mr. Freeborn of this Iſland, and Mr. Peleg Almy, Son of Coll. Almy of Seaconet, are both dead. Alſo that Capt. Darby was taken on the Coaſt of Guinea, on ſuſpicion of P——cy, by Capt. Herbert Commander of his Majeſty's Ship Diamond, and is to be carried to Barbados for his Tryal.

Boſton, April 21. On the 19th Inſtant, his Excellency was pleaſed to ſend down to the Repreſentatives Houſe the following Meſſage, to the two Houſes, viz.

Gentlemen of the Council and Houſe of Repreſentatives,

IT is with much Satisfaction that I look back on the Law made by this Aſſembly, to encourage the raiſing and dreſſing of Hemp and Flax, and ſince your laſt ſitting having met with ſome well approved Directions for the better Manufacturing theſe uſeful Commodities; I have got a Number of the Books Reprinted, one for each Member of this Court, and one for each Town of the Province. The raiſing of large Quantities of theſe and ſuch other Things as may not interfere with the Products and Manufactures of Great Britain, will render this Country more acceptable to the Crown, and more worthy of it's Protection, and will at the ſame time promote our Commerce in the moſt advantageous Manner.

April 19 1735. J. BELCHER.

After the Delivery of the aforeſaid Meſſage, his Excellency ordered Three Hundred of the Books mentioned therein, to be diſtributed to the Aſſembly, as a Preſent to them, and to the ſeveral Towns of the Province.

May 5. On Friday laſt Capt. Cowdry arriv'd here in 12 days from Bath County of North-Carolina, and informs us that it is exceeding ſickly there, eſpecially in the North-Country, where, 'twas judg'd above half the Inhabitants were dead; that whole Families were carry'd off thereby, the Diſtemper begins with a violent pain in the Eye, and the Sick cotinue but about 20 or 30 Hours before they die: He further ſays, that on the 8th of March laſt, there was a conſiderable Shock of an Earthquake in No-Carolina.
